

Designing your learning pathway

A learning path is a well-selected and guided sequence of courses with an aim of teaching a particular subject or skill. It often contains a number of chapters, each of which may contain child elements - documents, links and quizzes.

1

Introduction

Start off by introducing the learning path experience.

2

Presentation of content

Present content and topic with a video or any other material that will explain the basis of the topic to be introduced.

3

Other resources

Add additional resource to help students explore the subject matter in more detail.

4

Understanding

Make sure that the student understands the topic, focus on developing critical thinking and discussing key concepts.

5

Making connections

Encourage the making of connections and student's own recommendations.

6

Tracking the progress

Track the progress by assigning tasks to encourage students to keep up with the objectives. Make contributions to discussions and groupwork.
